DR. PICHESHWAR GADDE

It is my immense pleasure to welcome all students to Lingaya's Lalita Devi Institute of Management & Sciences as we begin a new academic semester. Each semester brings new opportunities for learning, growth, and shaping your future. With the guidance of your teachers and the encouragement of your mentors, you will be able to move confidently toward a successful career and a fulfilling life.

Our institute is fully equipped with modern facilities to support your academic journey. From advanced laboratories and a well-stocked library to round-the-clock internet access and computer resources, we continuously strive to provide an environment that encourages learning, innovation, and excellence.

At Lingaya's Lalita Devi Institute, our mission is to deliver professional education with a personal touch. Our leadership and dedicated faculty understand the aspirations of students who aim to build strong careers after completing their degrees. To support this goal, we place great emphasis on industry readiness through our active training and placement cell, which works tirelessly to connect students with promising career opportunities.

Remember that you are the architects of your own future. The more dedication and effort you invest in your goals, the closer you move toward achieving them. Our Pixel Magazine stands as a wonderful example of student creativity and commitment. For more than 15 years, students have contributed their ideas, talent, and passion to make this publication a proud tradition of our institute.

I wish all of you success, inspiration, and a rewarding experience in the semester ahead.

Ms. Sunita Gadde

Welcome to Lingaya's Lalita Devi Institute of Management & Sciences. We sincerely appreciate your interest in becoming a part of our institution. On behalf of our management, faculty members, and staff, I extend a warm greeting to everyone associated with LLDIMS.

I encourage you to explore our vision, mission, and objectives, which reflect our commitment to academic excellence and student development. At our institute, we focus on offering quality education and meaningful opportunities that help students grow both academically and professionally. Our goal is to prepare students to become capable professionals who can contribute effectively to local, national, and global work environments, as well as pursue higher education in reputed institutions worldwide.

We also take pride in building strong connections with organizations and industries. It is always our privilege to help employers discover talented and hardworking students from our institute for internships and full-time career opportunities.

As the Secretary, I am proud to work alongside a dedicated team of experienced professionals who continuously strive to improve the academic environment of our college. Together, we approach challenges with creativity and seek innovative solutions that meet the evolving needs of our institution and its students.

In today's fast-changing world of science and technology, maintaining high standards of quality and performance is essential for every educational institution. Through our commitment, dedication, and continuous efforts toward excellence, LLDIMS has emerged as one of the leading colleges committed to shaping bright futures.

Advisor Lingaya's Group of Institutions

Ms. Amita Kumar

It is a great privilege for me to extend a heartfelt welcome and congratulations to all the new students joining the undergraduate and postgraduate programs at Lingayat's Lalita Devi Institute of Management & Sciences. I wish each one of you success and happiness as you begin this exciting phase of your academic journey. I am confident that together we will make the coming years meaningful, productive, and memorable.

At our institute, we are proud to have a team of highly qualified and dedicated faculty members who are experts in their respective fields. They are committed to delivering quality education and guiding students toward academic and professional excellence. As part of the leadership team, we strive to ensure that your time at the college is both enriching and enjoyable.

Education is not just about acquiring knowledge; it is a continuous journey of exploration and growth. As students, you are the explorers who bring energy, curiosity, and fresh ideas into the learning environment. Your enthusiasm and determination motivate us and make the classroom a place of inspiration and creativity.

Always remember that success often comes with challenges. However, these challenges help you develop strength, wisdom, and confidence. Face them with courage, learn from every experience, and continue moving forward toward your goals.

Associate Professor, HoD Department of Journalism and Mass Communication, LLDIMS

Dr. Saleem Jawed

The student magazine ‘’Pixel’’ has long been a platform that showcases the creativity, talent, and intellectual abilities of our students. It provides an opportunity for students to share their ideas, opinions, and perspectives on a wide range of topics related to mass communication, journalism, media studies, and other related disciplines.

Contributing to this student publication allows individuals to express themselves creatively while also gaining valuable experience in writing, editing, and publishing. It is a wonderful way for students to strengthen their portfolios, develop practical skills in the field of media, and present their work to a wider audience.

We sincerely appreciate the enthusiasm, dedication, and active participation of all the students who contribute to this magazine. Your efforts continue to enrich the field of mass communication and help make Pixel a vibrant and inspiring publication.

Raghu Rai

The first Indian photographer to be nominated into the ranks of the prestigious Magnum Photos, Raghu Rai took up the camera as a photojournalist at the daily newspaper, The Statesman at the age of 23. His work as a photojournalist here and at other influential publications took him all over the country, to places of war and disaster such as Bhopal in the wake of the 1984 Gas Tragedy along with places of celebration such as musical concerts by the likes of Pandit Ravi Shankar and Hari Prasad Chaurasia, experiences that formed the crux of Rai's lifelong practice. His characteristic black and white photographs are odes to the entire spectrum of humanity, from instantly recognisable figures such as Indira Gandhi, Mother Teresa and Satyajit Ray to the anonymous populations on the fringes. Awarded the highest Indian civilian honour, the Padmashree in 1972 for his moving photojournalism of the Bangladesh War of 1971 and the refugee crisis that ensued in its wake, Rai holds a special place in the history of Indian photography. As he says, "for me, my country is my whole world. Even if I close my eyes, I can feel it."

Photography Tips Photography Tips Colour Grading

Color grading is all about enhancing or changing the colors in images, videos, and films to set a particular mood, style, or storytelling vibe. It’s a process where you tweak saturation, brightness, contrast, and hues to get that perfect look. You’ll often see it in photography, cinematography, and digital content creation, as it helps maintain consistency, fix imbalances, and boost visual appeal. In films, for instance, warm tones can bring about feelings of nostalgia and comfort, while cool tones might evoke mystery or sadness. Brands also tap into color grading in their marketing strategies to shape how consumers perceive them—think vibrant colors that radiate energy and youthfulness versus muted, earthy tones that convey sophistication. Fashion brands and social media influencers use it to craft a distinctive aesthetic. On a psychological level, colors can influence emotions and decision-making, which is why color grading is such a crucial storytelling tool. Whether it’s in films, ads, or social media posts, effective color grading grabs attention and reinforces the intended message, leaving a memorable impact on viewers.
